WELL SUPPORTED...

Helping you to run your own operation very professionally...

Appropriate assistance when you need it

- On site training if you want it: This is very valuable when you get started, and down the track when you are ready to "step up to the next level"
- Remote training and support via telephones and the Internet: Quick and timely remote support is very efficient and effective. (We have even done several new installations and initial training without going on-site.)
- Self-help through the <FI> key, and from our website: www.adminsoft.com

About us

Adminsoft is a small and innovative IT company, based in Auckland, NZ. We have been writing practice management software for professionals since 1989. Our original windows version was launched in 1998. Since then the product has been enhanced significantly, incorporating many requests and suggestions from our loyal user-base.

The majority of our users are professional practices such as surveyors, consulting engineers, architects, barristers, and business consultants, with between five and sixty staff. The software has proven itself at sites in NZ and Australia, some of which have multiple branch offices. We also have an entry-level version that is well suited to "sole traders" and firms with less than five staff.

Professional service delivered in a professional manner by a professional organization

The software helps you to:

- work more efficiently, freeing more time to lift the quality of your professional services
- communicate better with your clients and other parties, because standard letters or email at various points of a job are a breeze to generate
- feel good about your business because your internal systems work well
- retain staff (who also feel good about working in a very professional operation)
- increase your bottom line (which flows from all the above, plus everyone working smarter)
